QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK

(Editor's note: Here are the questions asked most frequently by Virginia farmers during the past week at the county agricultural agents. Staff members of the VPI Agricultural Extension Service and Experiment Station supply the answers).

Q. When is the best time to harvest red clover seed?

A. Cut for seed when most of the blooms are in the mature seed stage. A well-filled head, when rubbed in the palm of the hand, should show 30 to 60 seeds. Some of the seeds should have begun to show a violet color.

Q. When is the best time to sell my yearling steers?

A. There is no one "best time" for all producers, but for most yearling cattle the best time and place in Virginia is to sell them through the organized sales. The special sale in your area may not hit the highest period every year, but overall you'll profit by taking advantage of this market. The organized sales start in September. Watch your local newspapers, or ask your county agent about the time and place.

Q. Should I cut my clover for seed or for hay this year?

A. Your decision should depend on whether or not you need hay for feed; and whether or not you have a good fixed stand of clover. If you are interested in seed production, see Circular 592, "Growing Red Clover for Seed," available free from your county agent, or the VPI Agricultural Extension Servie, Blacksburg.

Homemakers Items

Smoked picnic and smoked hams are two cuts of meat that are often confused. They're similar in shape and flavor, but they're different cuts.

Extension workers explain that meat cut from the shoulder is called picnic. Meat from the leg or hind section of the pig is called ham. Price for a picnic is lower than that for ham, but there is more waste in bone and fat.

The texture of the meat is a little different, but both of the pork cuts are good eating, the Extension workers say.

"Boiled in oil" may not appeal to you, even as a way to cook meat, but if you marinate your meat in oil and vinegar, you'll have a flavor to brag about.

Extension workers say to take a chuck roast and put it in a dish or pan. Cover the meat with a mixture of equal parts of oil and vinegar. Add some herbs and spices if you like. Cover the mixture and let it stand in the refrigerator all day or overnight. You can use the oil and vinegar as part of the liquid for pot roasting of the chuck or cut the meat into steaks and use the oil and vinegar to braise them. The meat will have added flavor and tenderness.

When you store eggs open in the refrigerator, they will absorb flavors from onions, fruits, and cheese. So store eggs in a coverd container.

Here's a new idea for "chicken souffle." Blend together 1 can 10-1/2 ounces) of condensed cream of chicken soup and four well-beaten egg yolks. Beat whites until stiff but not dry and fold gently into soup mixture. Pour into a greased 1 1/2 quart casserole. Bake in 300° oven for one hour. Serve at once with a mushroom sauce made of 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup and 1/2 cup milk.

HALF-BAKED IDEA

Van Nuys, Calif.- Roy Owens, when last seen, was ruefully regarding the half-baked $200 he placed in a coffee can and then in the oven for safe keeping.

Mrs. Owens forgot, and cooked the dough a crisp, golden brown along with her bell peppers and custard pie.

Owens has sent the brownbacks to the Treasury Department and hopes they'll send him some greenbacks.

CALL-BACK SET

Detroit.- The auto industry, gearing to model production and rosy expectations for the 1959 models, has announced plans to call back laid-off workers — many of them idle since late last fall.

Appomattox is a growing town.

In Fashion Now

Italian knit dresses are causing quite a flap in the fashion industry. Why they must be Italian imports to cause so much interest is a good question, since American knit dresses have just as much style and quality per dollar.

However, the grass is always greener, and the imports from Milan are exquisite knits. They are spun from 100 per cent zephyr wool with a fine-gauge look. Some of the more expensive numbers are made of cashmere.

The detail on better quality dresses does credit to the "fine Italian hand." Full fashion sleeving, generous hemlines, collars that fall with the flattering precision of custom tailoring are a few points to note.

These garments pack and travel like a dream, and are right for the campus or career scene.

Raccoon trimmed coats are most important in casual wear. Raccoon is our most important casual fur and will cause a sensation on the campus again this year. A fashion tailored weather-treated all-wool coat will come in for a lot of compliments and a lot of hard wear on any campus this winter.

Health and Beauty

Great numbers who suffer from headaches are rugged via radio and television to use such a variety of sure cures for headaches that they become confused and do not know what to do about it all.

The causes of many headaches are due to over-indulgence in eating, smoking, drinking, taking cold, or to various and sundry disturbances in the vital organs.

Why does the head ache when the real disturbance is in some other part of the body? The brain is the center of the nervous system, and the impulses that are sent to it from other sections of the body that are in distress are manifested by pains in the head.

Occasional headaches often indicate some slight infringement of health laws, but when they become chronic, it may mean that the condition may be serious, and a competent physician should be consulted.

Eye-strain is a frequent cause of headache. This is corrected by proper glasses. Poor lighting, either too dim or too glaring, causes headaches.

Injuries to the head, concussion, tumors, or abscesses of the brain, meningitis, and many other acute or chronic conditions are accompanied by headaches. High or low blood pressure frequently causes headaches.

Migraine headache is not well understood by the medical profession. It is often accompanied by many strange symptoms, such as flashes of light, grotesque vision, and great pain. These attacks may come at intervals of months or weeks. It is due to many causes of which heridity and allergic reactions are common.

In highly emotional people, it is often due to shock, anger, grief, disappointment, or other mental upsets.

One of the best remedies against headaches is a peaceful mind, especially one that is free from envy and hate.

About The Home

By Frances Dell

A garage need not be a cluttered unattractive place filled with garden tools and sporting an oil stained floor. The garden tools can be stored in an orderly fashion in closets along the back or side walls. It is usually the disorder with which we store our garden tools that takes up the room.

If you are building a new home, you should give thought and planning to your garage. Windows are well placed high, planned for light and ventilation. An attractive rack beside the house entrance from the garage can be designed to accomodate garden shoes, and rain attire. Another important cabinet should be built to lock and can be used to store all those items as hunting equipment and sports equipment.

Plants can be used to create a garden atmosphere. Since true flower beds will usually be out of the question, the effect can be achieved through massing together plants and shrubs, in assorted tubs and containers.

Some plants can be selected for color and some for size, and others for their shape and luxuriant growth.

The high cost of building has made people take advantage of every inch of house space and in modern homes the garage doubles as a den. A built-in fireplace can be used for heating, but its main function is to provide a weather-proof cook-out. With folding furniture, that can be easily stored when not in use, in a matter of minutes an attractive garage can become a den.

Any family with children in their teens had better give this idea some thought. The garage is usually removed from the living quarters of a home, and the noise of a teen-age party will cause little concern.

The problem of oil dripping on the floor of a garage can be a major one. There are many ways to solve this bugaboo. Perhaps the best and least expensive is to provide sand pans for the cars to drip in when they are in the garage. If your floor is already stained there are several products on the market designed to remove oil stains from concrete floors.

CHAMPION GABBER

Buffalo, N. Y.- What every man knows — that women are the longest-winded talkers in the world — has been confirmed by Mrs. Jane Dudul, a 27-year-old housewife.

She kept up a steady stream of small talk for four days, two hours and 24 seconds, and claimed United States and world records.

Her husband, an office clerk, took care of their two children while she gabbed away and won $200 in cash and several hundred dollars in merchandise.

Locust Grove

Locust Grove, Aug. 26.- Mrs. Tommie Alfread and two daughters, Mrs. Jerrel Hayslett and daughter, of Covington spent last week with Mrs. Walker Beale.

Mrs. Ida Beale spent several days recently with her sister, Mrs. Lula Beale.

Mrs. Walker Beale is spending this week in Covington and Clifton Forge.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker Beale and Mrs. Lula Beale spent Friday and Saturday in Norfolk with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mogginson. They returned through Richmond and attended the birthday dinner of Mrs. Fannie Coleman. About twenty-five were present.

Friends are glad to see Mr. Leslie Coleman back home from the hospital and getting on so well. Those who visited him on Monday night of last week were Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Harvey and daughter, Harriett; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Garrette, Mrs. Lula Beale and Mrs. Enerestine Beale.

Mr. Willie Beale spent the week-end with his son, Bennie Beale.

FRIED BEES

Edmonton, Alberta.- For those who care, university researchers have glad tidings — deep fried unborn bees are delicious, with a sort of crisp, nutty flavor.

To make a taste tests, the Entomology Department had some baby bees cooked by the university Household Economics Department. Staff members sampled the outcome.

J. W. Edmonds, provincial government apiarist, was enthusiastic. He compared the flavor of deep fat fried bee brood to caviar.
